Reflection: HAPPINESS

For Centuries now, Philosophers and Theologians have expressed the view that the one thing people desire more than anything else is happiness. It is the reason why people do most of the things they do. It is the reason why they work, play, even pray. The Catechism that most adult Catholics learnt in their childhood supports this view. To the question “Why did God make you?” the Catechism responds: “God made me to know him, to love him, to serve him in this world, and to be happy with him forever in the next.”

Now, we come to the question of what really constitutes happiness, what is the content of happiness, what is it that really does make people happy, there has been no agreement among the philosophers and theologians. Some have said that happiness consists in having a lot of possessions, while others have maintained that it is to be found in power or authority. Yet others have advanced the view that pleasure is what gives happiness, while another school of thought has put forward knowledge as the repository of happiness.

One particular attractive view is that happiness resides in service. It was advanced by the philosopher-physician called Albert Schweitzer in the following statement: “I don’t what your destiny will be, but one thing I know; the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who have sought and found how to serve.”

It would seem that for Jesus none of the above views was accurate, except perhaps the last. So, he offered his own position. For Jesus happiness consists in possession of the Kingdom of heaven or the kingdom of God. That is what we learn from our Gospel reading of today, the famous Eight Beatitudes (Literally, the “Eight Happinesses”, since the Latin word Beatitudo means “Happiness”). If we have the kingdom of God or we are in the kingdom of God, that is when we shall be really happy, and nothing will be able to take that happiness away from us: not poverty, not hunger or thirst, not even persecution. Jesus himself is the prime example of everything that a truly happy person
